Laughton All of us who are true Englishmen honour the memory of Nelson, and it is therefore with some difficulty that, in publishing fresh evidence as to the affair at Naples, I also answer, as I am obliged to do, attacks denouncing me as Nelson s accuser. That role I most certainly shall not accept. With much of this I have since been furnished by the Marchese Maresca, the chief authority for the period, for whose generous and unwearying kindness (though not meaning for a moment to suggest that he is responsible for the use here made of it) I have no words adequate to express my gratitude. Among the authorities so obtained, and new to English ears, may be noted the Memoria of...
